"One will not run amiss of public opinion in characterizing Dr. John H. Barrows, who has just closed a course of lecture here, as one of the most eloquent and finished of the many speakers who have stood upon the platform at Chattanooga. His lectures have not been grouped about one theme, but have addressed themselves to various subjects quite different in their nature. He has entered the field of art, of theology, of history, and of ethics, and has in each spoken with understanding and with power, and expressed himself with a grace and beauty of diction seldom heard. His "America," or "Christianity in National Life," was a masterly effort. The course he has given here has won him a high place in the estimation of Chattanooga, and they well wish—as they do in all similar cases—to see him again." Chattanooga Herald.

THE TRAGIC TRAIT.

Death of Mrs. Charles P. Housum Saturday Night.

The public has been informed of the dangerous illness of Mrs. Charles P. Housum, wife of Mr. Charles P. Housum. She passed away Saturday night at the family residence on North Main street, in the 38th year of her age, death resulting from a complication of diseases which baffled the efforts of the best medical skill and were not affected favorably by change of climate. Last fall the wife and mother went to the tropics with her husband and they were at Nassau and Havana, Cuba, all winter, returning home this month. Since her return Mrs. Housum had been confined to her room and although there were times when it was thought she might recover, she steadily grew worse and breathed her last at 10:27 Saturday night, attended by her husband and children. The deceased was a true woman, deeply attached to her husband and children and was a kind neighbor and true friend. Her death is an irreparable loss to the family.

The deceased was a native of Mississippi and was in the 38th year of her age. She was a daughter of W. H. King, and a sister of Mrs. Will W. Connard, this city, whose husband is superintendent of the Assumption Coal Company. On April 9, 1874, sixteen years ago this month, she became the wife of Mr. Housum, and to the couple were born five sons, Joe, Will, Hugh, Chen and Daniel P. Housum.

The funeral will take place this evening at 8 o'clock from the family residence, Rev. W. H. Prestley officiating.

The Actors in Decatur. "Halewells" is the name of the Pullman combination sleeper, bonfire and dining car used by Edwin Booth, Mrs. Modjeska, Miss Proctor and other members of the party. It is 70 feet long, and Saturday night and Sunday stood on the Central side track at the North street crossing. It was visited by hundreds of people during the day, but the curtains were tightly drawn, and neither Mr. Booth nor Modjeska were visible.

During the afternoon, in an open carriage Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ewing visited the car and paid their respects to the eminent actors. Modjeska is a personal acquaintance of Mrs. Ewing. She accepted the invitation for a ride about the city, and appeared to enjoy the airing thoroughly.

Two young girls visited the car at 4:30 o'clock and presented a basket of flowers to Modjeska, from a Polish lady living in the fifth ward.

Sunday evening a number of the gentlemen of the party stopping at the hotel whiled away the hours at an impromptu musicale in the St. Nicholas parlors.

"Polonaise"—Mr. Ben G. Rogers; "Queen Gertrude"—Miss Anna E. Proctor; and "First Gravedigger"—Mr. Owen Fawcett, of the Booth-Modjeska company, proved themselves devout Episcopals by attending St. John's church both morning and evening on Sunday.

The party left this morning for Bloomington, where "Macbeth" will be the play to-night.

This week Edwin Booth and Mrs. Modjeska will fill engagements in Bloomington, Indianapolis, Vincennes, Ind., and at the Amphitheatre Auditorium in Louisville, Ky., reaching Dayton, O., May 6; Zanesville, May 6; Wheeling, May 7; Youngstown, May 8; and Buffalo, May 9, for three performances. They close their tour in the latter city.

This morning Supt. Alexander and the street force engaged in a little scrapping match—taking the mud off the streets on South Main, East Wood and South Water.

On Sunday a car-repairer at work near the depot was heard to say to John Dinneen: "I'll tell you what I wish the city council would do. I wish it would pass an ordinance to have every man found working on Sunday fined or shot." The man was evidently disgusted with his condition in life, but he either had to work on Sunday or lose his job.

A PROPHECY.

My little girl with eyes so blue And such bewitching tresses, And lips so soft and rosy, too,
That smile at my carcases.
So kind you are—so good and pure—I wish a spell to lay you, That, darling, I am very sure Your happy years await you.
For, though you're sitting on my knee, A tiny wren-like maid, The plain that some day I will be —A very sweet old lady—

Glasses in a Broadway Car.

It might not have been strange in these days of epidemic misery, but the passenger on a Broadway car smiled a little and thought it was funny when they looked about to find that every one of the nine passengers (four men, three women, a young girl and a boy) was wearing spectacles. And then a man in middle life came in, and everybody watched him while he drew his newspaper from his pocket, took out his spectacles case, put on his spectacles with deliberate care and looked all about him to find every eye of eyes on him smiling at him from behind like disks of glistening glass.
Everybody looked just a little more amused than before, and when the conductor came in to collect his fares, with a pair of gold rimmed glasses perched up on his nose, the young girl looked at the boy and giggled, the boy smiled broadly back, while the old gentleman called out with a forthright roar: "Bless my soul!
We're all in the same basket!"—New York Evening Sun.

Two Boston Millionaires.

A couple of Boston millionaires whom I know, Sears and Gray, live in one of the suburbs of Boston and used to drive together. There is a toll gate on the road on which they travel. One morning they started in earlier than usual. They had learned that there was a large cargo of sugar to be sold by the underwriters.
It was a big deal, and Sears and Gray concluded that they had the halcyon track of the deal. When they reached the toll gate Sears said:
"Gray, you must pay the toll today."
"I won't do it," Gray replied. "I paid for building (feeding) the horse yesterday, and I won't pay the toll today."
"Well, I won't," said Sears.
They kept up this cross fire for some minutes, and failing to agree, Sears turned the horse around and drove back home, Gray going with him. They discovered when it was too late that if they had gone into the city they would have made $400,000 in that deal.—Chicago Times.

A Breathing Exercise.

To expand the lungs: Go into the open air, stand erect, throw back the head and shoulders, and draw in the air through the nostrils as much as possible.
After having thus filled the lungs through the nostrils, raise your arms, and while they are extended, suck in the air. When you have thus forced the arms backward with the chest open, change the process by which you draw in your breath: till the lungs are emptied.
Go through this process several times a day and it will enlarge the chest, give the lungs better play, and serve very much to ward off consumption.—Christian Union.

A Rare Feline Discovered.

Near Patras a sarcophagus has been discovered richly sculptured. The bas-relief represents a wild boar hunt, in which are seen the hunters divided into two groups, seven of them being without beard and one bearded. This last is in the act of stopping a boar, running at full speed, and has his foot on the snout. The rest are pressing forward to slay the animal with hatchets and arrows. The work is highly finished and of the Roman period, but very probably copied from an original of Hellenic workmanship. Inside the sarco-phagus a skeleton was found.—Chicago

The Queen's Magazine.

Among the impedimenta with which the Queen started on her continental tour may be mentioned three coachmen, nine grooms, eight horses, one donkey, three carriages, seventy-two trunks, three special beds, a special cooking stove, wine, two doctors, one surgeon, one surgeon accoucheur for the Princess Beatrice, three ladies in waiting, nine women servants, one lord, two eunuchs and seven dogs.—London Letter.

Shakespeare is well appreciated by the higher educated natives in India, and last year a large number of his plays were published in the vernacular. "As You Like It" and "The Winter's Tale" were translated into Tamil and Telugu for Madras; "The Taming of the Shrew" came out in the Punjab, and "Hamlet," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Comedy of Errors" were great favorites in the northwest provinces.

London fire department statistics show that although theatre fires have increased greatly in number, they are far less dangerous than formerly, owing to the improvements in the apparatus for preventing them. The same statistics show that the death rate from fires in London has fallen from 338 in 1887 to 19 in 1889.

This is also said to the improved apparatus.

The table upon which Prince Bismarck signed the preliminaries of peace with Thiers at Versailles in February, 1871, was the only souvenir of the campaign which the Iron Chancellor bore back to Germany with him. He paid the Versailles landlord twenty-four francs for it.

Pearls are carefully taken up by the fishers and sold to wholesale merchants in Bombay. The difference in the price paid to the original pearl fisher and that paid by an American lady for her jewelers on Broadway or the Rue de la Paix amounts to about 50 per cent.—notmore.

Mount Hercules, a peak in the Island of Papua, which was discovered in 1881, is said to be 9,788 feet in height, being 2,781 feet higher than Mount Everest in the Himalayas, usually credited as being the highest in the world.

Pronounced Helpless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E.
Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, caught cold in and finally terminated in Consumption. Your doctor gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave my self up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my advent on God's throne. Your doctor was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman. I

A Dog's Story.

A correspondent tells a curious story of animal sagacity. He once knew a dog who used to run on the legs of one side—a sort of one-sided shambler. The dog would start in the usual way, and when he had acquired a sufficient momentum tucked up the legs of one side and, leaning over toward the other side, scamper along on two legs until tired.
He would then acquire fresh impetus, and give the other legs a turn at this exhilarating exercise. The correspondent writes from Cyprus, not Crete.—London Field.

A Valid Cause.

Lady Reformers—Why don't you congressmen pass a law prohibiting the smoking of cigarettes?
Congressman—We have no reason for doing so.
Lady Reformers—No reason? Why, cigarette smoke injures the brain.
Congressman—Possibly it does, ma-dams; but people who have brains don't smoke cigarettes.—Chatter.

A Floating Church.

The Rev. Robert J. Walker, of the Church of Our Saviour, anchored in the East river at the foot of Pike street, is something of a wag. He says that his church is "light" or "show" according to the tide. As his members are all sailors, they may be said to be dependent upon the floating population.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Not Afraid of Microbes.

Dr. George Dutton, a Boston physician, at a meeting of the American Health society, of which he is president, made this challenge: "Let my medical friends bring me half a pint of all kinds of bacilli and I will eat them, provided that if I am not sick the next day the microbes theorists will forever thereafter hold their peace."

The total population of Greenland at the end of 1888 was 10,291. There had been 182 deaths during the previous year, of which thirty-one had been by drowning from the native canoes and ten by other accidents.

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheu-matoid Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alternative.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to
